Our Work with Local Communities

Your community is facing rapid change and some aspects of your local culture are slowly getting lost.

While your community's local culture looks non-sustainable and unresilient, you are willing to secure culturally significant practices for future generations.

Our work is to report how your local culture is currently being weakened, by identifying its strengths and weaknesses in order to create a local cultural sustainability strategy.

Based on that, you can develop community engagement projects that respect local community values, assess future projects success on how they are impacting community culture as well as determine your community's cultural sustainability goals for its future.
